 If the days declared as local, regional or national holidays for 2027 do not coincide with those foreseen in this calendar, the corresponding days will automatically change from non-teaching to teaching days.

Exceptionally, during the 2026-2027 academic year, university centres may schedule extraordinary sittings for Bachelor's and Master's Theses (TFG/TFM) of the 2026-2027 academic year within the last full quarter of 2027, and must notify the Vice-Rectorate responsible for student affairs.

During non-teaching days, no doctoral thesis readings or defences may be held, no ordinary meetings of governing or university participation bodies may be convened, and no elections may be held in the university community.

However, for the exclusive purposes of doctoral thesis readings, defences of final degree projects, extraordinary exam-review boards and other necessary academic activities, 12 to 23 July 2027 will be considered teaching days. These activities will be held in the morning or in a non-in-person format.

For external internships enrolled in the 2026-2027 academic year that will take place during the non-teaching period in July and August 2027, the deadline for submitting grade reports will be 27 September 2027 at the latest.

University centres may enable an additional sitting in September 2027 for the defence of Bachelor's and Master's final projects for the 2026-2027 academic year. In these cases, the deadline for submitting grade reports will be 27 September 2027 at the latest.
